

Email System - How It Works

A simple guide to the automatic emails sent by the website.

What is this?

The website sends emails automatically at the right moments - for example, when someone contacts you, when a new user is approved, or when someone forgets their password. Every email is sent from the official address and looks professional, with the company logo and brand colours.

Sender address: info@frantzcoutard.com (shown as "FrantzCoutard")

Who receives which email?

Emails are sent to different people depending on WHAT happened. There are two groups: emails sent to the USER (the visitor / member) and emails sent to the ADMIN team (you and your staff).

1) Emails sent to the USER

Forgot Password

- When a user forgets their password, they enter their email on the site.
- If the email belongs to a real account, a reset link is emailed to that user.
- The link works only once and expires after 60 minutes for safety.
- Goes to: the user who asked for it.

Account Approved

- When an admin approves a new account, that user gets a welcome email telling them their account is active and they can sign in.
- Goes to: the approved user (student, teacher, school, parent, or member).

Account Rejected

- If an admin rejects an account, the user gets a polite email with the reason.
- Goes to: the rejected user.

Sponsorship Confirmation

- When someone submits a sponsorship application, they receive a thank-you confirmation email with the next steps.
- Goes to: the person / organisation who applied.

2) Emails sent to the ADMIN team

Whenever a visitor submits a form on the website, all admins are notified by email right away, so nothing is missed. This happens for:

- Contact form messages
- General requests (booking, media, etc.)
- Event RSVPs
- Sponsorship applications
- Gallery / content submissions

Goes to: every administrator account, plus one configured notification address.
So if you have three admins, all three receive the notification together.

3) Daily Activity Report (automatic)

Once every day, the system automatically emails the admin a summary of that day.

- If something happened that day (new sign-ups, messages, orders, etc.), a neat PDF report is created and attached to the email.
- If nothing happened, a short "no new activity today" email is sent instead.
- This runs on its own every day - no one has to click anything.

How the emails look

- Clean, professional design with the company logo at the top.
- Brand colours (black and gold) matching the website.
- Clear heading, message, and a button when action is needed (e.g. "Reset Password" or "Sign In").

Reliability

- Every email is placed in a queue and sent safely in the background.
- If an email fails to send (for example, a temporary internet issue), the system automatically tries again a few times.
- A failed email never breaks the website or the form the visitor submitted.

In short

The right person gets the right email at the right time - automatically. Users get their own account and password emails, and the admin team gets notified of every new submission, plus a daily summary. Everything is branded and sent reliably.
